Hi Evan,

Great to hear from you. There's a sample form you can use on this landing page. You can also submit the report on that page.

As for the remaining funds, is there an activity you'd like to propose to use the remaining amount? If so, feel free to email that off to me. If not, you can have your grants office send it back in the form of a check, here's our address:

Hello Hussein,

I am getting ready to go on sabbatical, and realized I had not filed a report for this grant yet. What should it look like? Unfortunately, after a good start, for several reasons interest fell the second time I ran my group, and as a result still I have about $5200 that I can return if you would like and such a thing as possible.

Actually, the approval of the grant and setting up of the infrastructure by our university was so late that my understanding was that it was for the 2017 calendar year. So I haven't come close to exhausting the grant yet. If you want a report for one semester of work I can certainly provide one, but I was planning to finish up grant-related activity in November.

Let me know.

Mr. Hussein,

Nice talking to you the other day. We chatted about some things it would be helpful to have. What I could use is a speakers' list for the topics of academic freedom, freedom of expression more generally and the role of free markets in improving the welfare of historically excluded groups. If you have such lists that would be great.

Among these, is the right of locomotion; the right of migration; the right which belongs to no particular race, but belongs alike to all and to all alike. It is the right you assert by staying here, and your fathers asserted by coming here. It is this great right that I assert for the Chinese and Japanese, and for all other varieties of men equally with yourselves, now and forever. I know of no rights of race superior to the rights of humanity, and when there is a supposed conflict between human and national rights, it is safe to go to the side of humanity." - Frederick Douglass (1869)

Thanks so much for reaching out - Steve flipped this to me as I'm your main point of contact for the grant.

Both seem like great ideas - if you think it will resonate on your campus and bring a fresh perspective then I think that's fantastic. The link between innovation and barriers to entry is always an interesting one, and free speech on campus is particularly a concerning and important issue.

Please let me know if I can be of assistance in any way throughout this process.

Hi Steve,

I am getting ready to start spending the grant money after the new year. I may organize one panel of outside speakers, and I want to run two themes by you to see which one more closely approximates the goals of the foundation. The first would be a panel on free women and free markets. Here the people I would invite have both written on the effects of innovation and competition on both the declining household burdens of women and the increasing ability of women to become entrepreneurs. (The two of course are related to some extent.)

The second would be on whether there is a growing problem of hostility to free expression on campus. I would probably invite a couple of academics who have personally experienced attempts to shut them down or punish them for what they say. They have different points of view politically.

If neither of these two is possible to organize from my end, as a back up I may invite people who have written on the immense cost of the local-food movement.

Any thoughts you have would be welcome.

Best,

Evan

Dr. Osborne,

Thank you for your update.

Do you mean that they took your application over the phone? Or did you submit a written document? If you have submitted a written document, please provide me a copy for official record. If not, at the least, please provide me with the name of the project and the amount you have requested so that I can track the data.

I see no need to speak at this time since you have already submitted. Please keep me posted on your progress, as university gift grant applications are required to go through my office for oversight and coordination. Also, please note that any grant funds awarded should be made payable to the Wright State University Foundation.

Regards,
Mary Jean

As indicated in the message below, I did in fact speak with someone from the foundation just now. I have formally applied for the grant, and the woman I spoke to will run it through their approval committee. She sounded optimistic, and said they might have news for me in 2 to 3 weeks.

Do you still wish to speak? If so, does July 27 at 1 o'clock, Eastern time, work?

Dr. Osborne,

Yes, it would probably be helpful if we spoke in person about this opportunity. Our office provides coordination and oversight for foundation applications, but we do not offer many of the services you may be used to receiving when working with Research and Sponsored Programs. We can talk about the process and how to best collaborate.

I am out on vacation much of the month of July, but here are some dates/times I am available (Ohio time):

July 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 at 10:00 or 1:00. Please let me know if any of these times would work for you.

One quick question—is there an application deadline? I couldn't see one.

Mary Jean

How should we proceed? I have never applied for a grant through your offices before, but I spoke to someone at the foundation. He seems pretty excited about it, and would like to get started quickly.

One complication is that for the rest of the summer I will be in Colorado, although available by phone and email. I am thinking about asking for the grant for the calendar year 2017.

Hello Deborah,

Thank you for bringing this to my attention. Upon review of the attachment and the Koch website, it appears to me that it would come through the Wright State University Foundation. A few indicators that it would be considered a "gift" are the fact that they don't fund overhead, and it doesn't appear that there are any tight restrictions on "owning" any of the results or activities in any way. Although, I was unable to find any information on grant reporting requirements.

I encourage Dr. Osborne to coordinate this application through my office, and also to include Jennifer Ruhl, the RSCOB Director of Development (copied here).

Hope this helps.

Good morning, Mary Jean,

Dr. Evan Osborne, Professor of Economics in the RSCOB (copied on this email), is interested in pursuing the Charles Koch Foundation for a project interest. At first blush it is unclear if it should come through RSP or through your area. The word charitable comes up a time or two, though in larger reference to a category of acceptable activities. Could you review at your earliest convenience for your recommendation so that Dr. Osborne can move forward with his proposal with the office most appropriate to facilitating its submission?

Thank you!

Thanks, there are several great names on the list, although I don't know whether I could persuade them to come out to what might be a rather small event.

Either way, I have worked up a budget making fairly pessimistic estimates about expenses, but having said that seems high to me. Let me know if you think this is a reasonable amount to ask for.

Activity 1: reading group, to meet once a month in the winter and fall semesters. The anticipated participation is as high as 20 students. A book for each month will be selected by me and the students together. Depending on student preference, we may meet on campus, or at nearby coffee shops or restaurants. It is possible that if a contemporary book is selected, the author may be invited to campus to give a talk or hold a discussion. (In this case, the entire campus might be invited.)

Budget:

- Books for students: 20 students, seven months, assumed book price $30 = $4200
- Food/drink expenses: 20 students, seven months, assumed expenses $25 per student (assuming we go to restaurant; will be less if held at coffee shop or on campus) = $3500
- For invited authors, an honorarium of up to $1000 may be paid (I would try to get them for less), as would travel expenses. Travelocity currently lists round-trip flights between Dayton and New York City at $250, and a hotel close to campus would cost perhaps $120. Assuming flights might cost as much as $500 and doing this twice a year, this would equal $1240.

Activity 2: In addition, at most once each semester I propose a separate event, open to the entire campus, in which one or two speakers would be invited to campus to make a speech or have a debate on a theme related to the Charles Koch Foundation's areas of interest. The maximum amount required would be, using the above prices, one night in a hotel plus plane fare, this time for two people, costing as much as $2480.

Total proposed expenditure for the year: $11,420.

Absolutely, we can easily make something work! Thanks, there are several great names on the list, although I don't know whether I could persuade them to come out to what might be a rather small event.

Either way, I have worked up a budget making fairly pessimistic estimates about expenses, but having said that seems high to me. Let me know if you think this is a reasonable amount to ask for.

Stephen,

I am starting to put the proposal together. I am thinking about a reading group (perhaps "seminar" sounds classier :)), where I might have occasional guest speakers, including book authors, also come. I have a few in mind, but I don't know what their fees are. First, should I include proposed fees in the budget? Second, does the Foundation have a list of "go-to" speakers who are willing to travel?

"There are such things in the world as human rights. They rest upon no conventional foundation, but are external, universal, and indestructible. Among these, is the right of locomotion; the right of migration; the right which belongs to no particular race, but belongs alike to all and to all alike. It is the right you assert by staying here, and your fathers asserted by coming here. It is this great right that I assert for the Chinese and Japanese, and for all other varieties of men equally with yourselves, now and forever. I know of no rights of race superior to the rights of humanity, and when there is a supposed conflict between human and national rights, it is safe to go to the side of humanity." - Frederick Douglass (1869)

Hello Dr. Osborne,

Nice to "meet" you via phone today.

As discussed, I've attached the draft cover letter and also your draft proposal where I have included some comments for your consideration to help describe the project and strengthen the proposal.

Also per our discussion, I've copied Jennifer Ruhl to bring her in the loop and to make sure that RSCOB is aware of your proposal.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Hopefully we should be able to have this completed and ready for submission by the end of the week.

Best regards,
Mary Jean

Foundation Letterhead

Date, 2016

Mr. Stephen Sweet
Charles Koch Foundation
1515 North Courthouse Road
Suite 200
Arlington, VA 22201

To whom it may concern:

Wright State University Foundation respectfully requests a grant in the amount of $11,420 to be used to support the following program at Wright State University:

- Student Book Review/Discussion for $XX,XXX

The proposed activities will take place during January 1, 2017 and December 31, 2017.

The above program, which will be under the control and supervision of the Wright State University Foundation and the Wright State University Raj Soin College of Business, will be carried out by Evan W. Osborne, Ph.D., professor of economics.

Should a grant be awarded by the Charles Koch Foundation, a check made payable to the Wright State University Foundation should be sent to:

Mary Jean Henry
Director of Foundation and Corporate Relations
Wright State University
3640 Colonel Glenn Hwy
Dayton, OH 45435

Any grant awarded shall be expended exclusively for charitable purposes described in Code section 170(c)(2)(B) and no part of the grant will be used for a lobbying purpose or to engage in any political activity.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions about the above-mentioned grant request.

Add an introductory paragraph that includes:

The goal of your project

Types of "topics" that will be addressed through the activities

Description of the students involved (in a certain academic program or class?)

How your activities support the goals/mission of the Koch Foundation

Explain what the benefit is to participating students... what will they do with the new knowledge—what is the impact—how does it advance Koch goals?

Activity one: reading group, to meet once a month ~~in the winter 2016 and fall 2017~~ semesters. The anticipated participation is as high as 20 students. A book for each month will be selected by me and the students together (Based on what criteria? What Koch-related theme are you focusing on?). Depending on student preference, we may meet on campus, or at nearby coffee shops or restaurants. It is possible that if a contemporary book is selected, the author may be invited to campus to give a talk or hold a discussion. (In this case, the entire campus might be invited.)

Budget:

- Books for students: 20 students, seven months, assumed book price $30 = $4200
- Food/drink expenses: 20 students, seven months, assumed expenses $25 per student (assuming we go to restaurant; will be less if held at coffee shop or on campus) = $3500
- For invited authors, an honorarium of up to $1000 may be paid (I would try to get them for less), as would travel expenses. Travelocity currently lists round-trip flights between Dayton and New York City at $250, and a hotel close to campus would cost perhaps $120. Assuming flights might cost as much as $500 and doing this twice a year, this would equal $1240 each.

Deleted: 1

Commented [M Henry1]: I would suggesting going the coffee shop route to lower expenses and then perhaps more students could participate? I think Koch would rather see the funding used for materials than food

Deleted: <#>¶

Activity two: In addition, at most once each semester I propose a separate event in which one or two speakers would be invited to campus to make a speech or have a debate on a theme related to the Charles Koch Foundation's areas of interest. The maximum amount required would be, using the above prices, one night in a hotel plus plane fare, this time for two people, costing as much as $2480. (If you plan to attempt to secure speakers from the list that Koch Foundation provided, I would suggest that you state such.) (If these guest speaker sessions will be open to the entire campus, I would suggest that you state such and descr be the benefit/impact.)

Commented [M Henry2]: Suggest moving Activity Two up under Activity One and leaving the budget info as the last thing in the narrative

Total proposed expenditure: $11,420. (Suggest adjusting your estimated figures a little so you can round up the total cost to $11,500 or $12,000, and that will give you a little buffer as well, since these are estimated costs.)

The Foundation gives grants to promote activities that will "engage students with the principles of free societies." Toward this end, I propose to promote discussion of both classic and contemporary books that involve these principles. It will be outside of class.

Detailed description: I will manage reading group, to meet five teams over the winter, 2017, and fall, 2017 semesters. (I have done two programs like this in the past for faculty.) The anticipated participation is as 14 students. A book for each of five months will be selected by me and the students together, based on a choice of books I offer them related to the aforementioned Foundation goal. Depending on student preference, we may meet on campus, or at nearby coffee shops or restaurants. If a contemporary book is selected, as many as two authors may each be invited to campus to give a talk or hold a discussion. (In this case, the entire campus, faculty, staff and students, might be invited.)

Budget:

- Books for students: 14 students, five sessions, assumed book price $30 = $2100
- Amenities expenses: 14 students, five sessions, assumed expenses $21 per student = $1470
- For invited authors, an honorarium of up to $800 may be paid (I would try to get them for less), as would travel expenses. Travelocity currently lists round-trip flights between Dayton and New York City at $250, and a hotel close to campus would cost perhaps $165. Doing this twice a year, this would sum to $1215 x 2 = $2430.

Total proposed expenditure: $6000

Hello Dr. Osborne,

I've been in contact with Kristin at the Koch Foundation regarding your application. She had requested a revised cover letter to complete the application (attached for your records), and some additional WSU tax documentation, which I provided.

Per my conversation with Kristin today, the grant has been approved and we should receive the funds in early-mid October. Congratulations!!

Meanwhile, could you please provide the Foundation account name/number for these funds (a six digit number beginning with "55") so that we are ready make the deposit when the funds arrive. If you need to create a new account, please use the attached form and submit it to Tracy McKellar, Advancement Services (@Foundation Building, tracey.mckellar@wright.edu, x2766. If you have questions regarding the appropriate fund account, your college business manager would likely be able to assist you.

"There are such things in the world as human rights. They rest upon no conventional foundation, but are external, universal, and indestructible. Among these, is the right of locomotion; the right of migration; the right which belongs to no particular race, but belongs alike to all and to all alike. It is the right you assert by staying here, and your fathers asserted by coming here. It is this great right that I assert for the Chinese and Japanese, and for all other varieties of men equally with yourselves, now and forever. I know of no rights of race superior to the rights of humanity, and when there is a supposed conflict between human and national rights, it is safe to go to the side of humanity." - Frederick Douglass (1869)

Hello Deborah,

Thank you for bringing this to my attention. Upon review of the attachment and the Koch website, it appears to me that it would come through the Wright State University Foundation. A few indicators that it would be considered a "gift" are the fact that they don't fund overhead, and it doesn't appear that there are any tight restrictions on "owning" any of the results or activities in any way. Although, I was unable to find any information on grant reporting requirements.

I encourage Dr. Osborne to coordinate this application through my office, and also to include Jennifer Ruhl, the RSCOB Director of Development (copied here).

Hope this helps.

Best regards,
Mary Jean

Good morning, Mary Jean,

Dr. Evan Osborne, Professor of Economics in the RSCOB (copied on this email), is interested in pursuing the Charles Koch Foundation for a project interest. At first blush it is unclear if it should come through RSP or through your area. The word charitable comes up a time or two, though in larger reference to a category of acceptable activities. Could you review at your earliest convenience for your recommendation so that Dr. Osborne can move forward with his proposal with the office most appropriate to facilitating its submission?

Thank you!

PIES (Partners In Integrated Earth Systems Science) is a three phase long-term professional development program to increase the integrated science content, pedagogical, and technological knowledge of teams of K-12 teachers in the Hillsboro City Schools, Middletown City Schools and Franklin City Schools. Hillsboro City Schools will be the leading district with high need areas, which not less than 20% of the children served are from families with income below the poverty line. The 24 teachers participating in Project PIES will serve as catalyst and mentors to other teachers and will drive curriculum change in the district to meet the Ohio Revised Science Standards and the Common Core Standards. Project PIES will effect these changes by using a three-phase research based approach to classroom educator professional development. Phase I is composed of a one week field experience followed by a week long laboratory experience. The field trip will take participants to the Atlantic Ocean to study the physical and biological processes that interact to form the modern ocean environment compared to the ancient ocean sediments preserved around the Atlantic Coastal Plain around the Duke University research institute. The field experience will be guided inquiry based questions allowing participants to build their content and pedagogical understandings. Following the inquiry based field trip, participants will gather for a week of laboratory work, participating in inquiry based learning with samples collected from the field, and developing ideas to integrate inquiry based integrated science activities into their own classrooms. Continuing this process, phase II of project PIES, is a four-week long Internet course designed to assist participants in developing classroom applications connected to the Common Core Standards. The teams of classroom educators will develop, implement and assess inquiry based integrated science activities in their own classrooms. Phase III will provide further support and contact with participants and project personnel with bi-monthly web conferences during the academic year. Assessment of the project will be both formative and summative, and will focus on changes in the cognitive and affective domains of both classroom educators and their students.

As a result of project PIES, partner schools will have teams of teachers experienced in inquiry based integrated Physical Science, Life Science, Earth/Space science content, Mathematical processes best pedagogical practices and the use of the Internet technology and analytical instrumentation technology. Participants will also have the opportunity to collect water, sediment samples, fossils, specimens of igneous, metamorphic and sedimentary rocks and take slides for their schools' classrooms. Teachers participating in project PIES will be agents of change, leading their districts' efforts to produce scientifically literate students in STEM disciplines and citizenry well versed in the skills that will be needed to ensure Ohio's economic future and meet Ohio's Learning Standards (Ohio Revised Standards in Science and Common Core).

Mary Jean,

Thank you for passing this along.

The request letter template that we sent along includes the clause “and the direction of [faculty driver], who was selected by Wright State University.” The “selected by” language is important to us, as it affirms Dr. Osborne’s academic freedom. Might you be able to include this in an updated request?

We were also under the impression that the university would be the requestor rather than the university foundation. If you prefer the university foundation, we are happy to work with that, though we would kindly ask that you use the attached request letter template. You’ll see that this template states that the Foundation is a fiscal agent (in this template, “grantee” is always the university).

Feel free to write me a line or give me a ring at [REDACTED] if you have any questions.
